Supporting Education Through Innovative Technology Grants

Funds initiatives that use technology to transform lives through education and training for the cultural, social and economic benefit of Victorians.

The Telematics Trust is committed to funding initiatives that support this vision by demonstrating innovative use of technology through education and training.

The Trust funds initiatives that use technology to reach diverse and disadvantaged groups and address important practical problems and social issues in our community and environment. These initiatives demonstrate the innovative use of technology through education and learning, and they aim to measurably improve the well-being of the community and environment.

The Telematics Trust aims to support projects that educate and empower people from diverse backgrounds to learn new things and build their capacity to contribute to society. In particular, the Trust targets and funds innovative projects which:
- Would be assisted by seeding grants
- Are not likely to be supported by other funding bodies.

All projects must
- Be based in Victoria and be for the benefit of Victoria and Victorians. There may also be a broader benefit to Australians arising from the project or initiative
- Be education and/or training driven and market oriented
- Have a significant commitment of support from the applicant organisation, which may include in-kind or monetary contributions.

Who can apply?
- Individuals
- Educational Institutes
- Government
- Business
- Non-profit organisations.

The Telematics Trust can only accept applications from organisations or individuals that have an Australian Business Number and are based in Victoria.
